THERE WILL BE NO CLASS MAY 31ST, DUE TO MEMORIAL DAY.

Dance Tips

Smile, Especially when dancing with new dancers. Make eye contact, which helps show your partner You enjoy dancing with them.

Don't do extra twirls and spins. The beginners look to you for example, you may know where you need to be next and which way to be facing, but they don't. Let them get the basics before trying to adding the more advanced turns.

A dance floor will always have people with different styles and knowledge levels about dancing: This doesn't mean they are good or bad dancers, just people enjoying themselves for an evening. Maybe if you take dancing to seriously that you're losing your ability to laugh at yourself over a mistake. Are you try to show off to your partner? Are you bragging on yourself? This will make people Feel uncomfortable dancing with you. You don't have to try moves when you know your partner is a beginner or you're a beginner yourself. Everyone knows by dancing with someone the level they can dance. It will make them more comfortable and want to dance with you more if you just go out and have fun and don't be to critical or try to show your partner moves on a social dance floor. There's time for learning in class. Social Dancing is meant to have to have fun.

Line Dances for June
